BRITISH MOVE AGAINST AXIS AFRICAN FORCE

Act To Seize Initiative from Rommel; Hitler Throws Force at Reds.

By The Associated Press

Britain's Desert armies, swiftly countering the threat of a new drive by 125,000 troops under Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, were reported seizing the initiative with attacks on advanced Axis positions in North Africa today while at sea, the British reported the sinking of a 10,000-ton Italian cruiser in the central Mediterranean.

A London admiralty communique said that a British submarine torpedoed the cruiser, which was escorted by destroyers and aircraft, and that eight minutes later the warship "was heard to break up and sink."

Premier Mussolini's high command acknowledged that the British were counter-attacking on the Libyan front, but asserted they had been beaten off.

British headquarters at Cairo said that British troops were engaging axis forces at Sidi Breish, about 75 miles southwest of Tobruk, and that other British columns had captured a number of axis troops between Tmimi and El Gazala.

El Gazala is 40 miles west of Tobruk; Tmimi 20 miles farther west.

"The enemy did not attempt to advance further yesterday," British headquarters said.

Russian Front

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches reported that Adolf Hitler was already throwing his spring-camouflaged tanks and newest 1942 planes into the struggle and that Red army fliers and anti-aircraft gunners had destroyed a total of 545 Nazi planes in 10 days.

The Russians said 139 German transports assigned to supply isolated Nazi troops on the northwest front—in the bloody Staraya Russa sector where the German 16th army has been trapped for weeks—had been blasted out of the skies.

"Landing grounds in the neighborhood of Lake Ilmen became a cemetery for German Junkers 52's," said the Soviet army newspaper, Red Star, adding that the Germans had transferred heavy aircraft from France and North Africa to help relieve food and munitions shortages at key bases.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters, which lately has been stressing Nazi offensive operations, reported tersely today that "various powerful attacks by the enemy were repulsed" on the Moscow and Leningrad fronts.

RAF Blasts Again

In aerial warfare, RAF bombers pressed their spring offensive against the reich, attacking the key port of Hamburg and other objectives in northwest Germany as well as the docks at Le Havre in German-occupied France.

The British air ministry acknowledged the loss of six bombers in the night forays.

Axis Raids on Malta Reach Peak Today

LONDON, April 9—Axis efforts to knock out the British island of Malta with mass raids appeared today to have reached their peak coincident with the resumption of activity in Libya by the forces of German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Four objectives for children both as a wartime responsibility and as stepping-stones to the future, came out of a conference called by the federal department of labor, at which the national P.-T. A. president was present, Mrs. Birrel reported. These objectives she outlined as follows:

Guard children from injury in danger zones; protect children from neglect, exploitation and undue strain in defense areas; strengthen the home life of children whose parents are mobilized for war or war production; conserve, equip, and free children of every race and creed to take their part in democracy.

Objectives Listed

Mrs. Birrel said the four objectives have been developed into "very concrete" activities which will be announced to the P.-T. A. groups in June. She urged members of read the May issue of the organization's magazine which will contain an analysis of morale sent out by the state department of education. She outlined the analysis as follows: Unity in the community; rumor stopping; meeting shortages by sharing; keeping moral standards high; trust in God.

"Listen to God and obey wherever you are," she said. "That is your highest national service and, may I add, that is your highest parent-teacher service."

CALL JOHNSON HERO OF HOUR IN INDIA PARLEY

U. S. Envoy Hailed as Indians Move Toward Agreement with Cripps.

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India, April 9—A general understanding on the main issues between the All-India Congress party and Sir Stafford Cripps is as good as reached, it was reported today.

As far as the Congress party, potent Hindu voice on whose approval the protracted and complex negotiations for post-war Indian dominion status hinge, it now appears that there will be no difficulty or delay in the establishment of a national government in India.

This development came after another day's proceedings began on a rising note of optimism with Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, the Congress leader, conferring with Louis Johnson, President Roosevelt's personal emissary, and the congress working committee again in session at Birla house.

After a one hour meeting with Nehru, Johnson saw Cripps. His lengthy meetings last night with members of the Congress party and the British envoy had brightened hopes of an eventual settlement.

The congress working committee, it was believed, now may issue a statement on the final terms tomorrow or, at the latest, Saturday.

The All-India Moslem league working committee's resolution was expected also to be released about that time. The league is the dominant voice among the great Moslem minority in India.

Johnson Is Hero

As a result of reports circulated throughout the country that the British government and the congress party had finally come to terms, President Roosevelt's personal minister to India, Louis Johnson, was characterized by commentators as "the hero of the hour."

Johnson, who arrived late last week, took an increasingly prominent part in the negotiations and this evening's issue of the Nationalist newspaper, the Bombay Sentinel, described him as a "super Cripps."

Throughout his talks with Cripps and nationalist leaders, Johnson's attitude was reported to have been to this effect: "Better to pay the price for Congress' cooperation than to risk the future."

The formula on the defense issue reportedly reached by Cripps, Johnson and Congress leaders was said to provide for a clear division of functions, with General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, now British commander for India, to be supreme commander for conduct of the war under a war cabinet while an Indian defense minister acting under the authority of the projected Indian national government would be war minister.

Buying of War Plant Site Ready To Start

Procedure of Closing Purchase Deals Will Get Under Way Monday; May 9 Set as Final Evacuation Date.

Starting Monday, the Marion land acquisition office of the army engineers will start closing deals for farms in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area that are south of the Marion-Grand Prairie and Claridon-Scott township lines.

When owners of farms in this area call at the land acquisition office at 118 North State street beginning Monday morning, they will learn for the first time the purchase price the government has placed on their properties, and will be asked to sign papers giving the government an option to purchase at the specified price.

Evacuation Deadline

Another development today was the announcement that May 9 has been set as the final evacuation date for the entire plant area. Some owners and tenants are being ordered to vacate before this deadline as operations progress, but the order announced today makes it definite that no one may remain on his premises or retain stock or equipment on them after midnight of May 9. As farmers move, they are asked to notify the land acquisition office of their new address.

The portion of the plant area on which the land acquisition office is ready to take options is roughly the south half of the total plant site.

The office will be open daily beginning at 8 a. m. to take the options, and will remain open until 10 p. m. or later each day until the job is finished. A date will be set later for closing deals for farms in the north portion of the area.

Basis of Prices

It was emphasized in today's announcement that the government has made a careful and thorough study before placing valuations on the properties, and that allowance has been made for the land, plus all improvements, planted crops and other factors entering into the value of each property. The prices land acquisition officials pointed out, have been fixed by men long experienced in local and general values, all of whom can qualify as expert witnesses in federal court. The prices offered by the government have been determined by careful study and are the only prices the government will pay, they said. The only way a price can be changed, either up or down, is by the U. S. federal court, through a jury trial.

Early signing of the government options will speed the purchase procedure to Washington for final acceptance and payment of the purchase price to the farmers, they said.

The government will bear all legal and incidental expenses in connection with the purchases excepting the cost of federal stamps for the deeds. The seller is required by law to supply these stamps.

JAPS DRIVE THROUGH LINES OF DEFENDERS IN CONSTANT ATTACK

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 9 — Overwhelming Japanese forces in the Philippines, a war department communique said today, have made advances which indicated "the probability that the defense of Bataan had been overcome" despite a heroic counter-attack attempt by physically exhausted defenders.

Informed quarters here expressed a growing belief that the stubborn resistance of the American-Filipino troops, who had held part of the peninsula since early January against all Japanese attacks, had virtually ceased.

Secretary of War Stimson reported today that Lieutenant General Jonathan Wainwright's forces on Bataan numbered 36,853 effective troops when their resistance apparently collapsed.

The secretary indicated at a press conference that the bulk of this force faced either death or capture.

President Roosevelt has authorized the Philippine commander to make any decision he deemed necessary in the light of events, Stimson said.

Stimson told reporters that latest reports from the Philippines indicated that Corregidor and the other fortifications guarding the entrance to Manila bay still stood, but declined to make predictions as to how long they could hold out.

"This is only a temporary loss," Stimson said. "We shall not stop until we drive out the invaders from the islands."

Army men expressed doubt that large numbers of surviving troops could be evacuated under fire across the two miles of open water between the southern tip of the peninsula and the island fortress of Corregidor, which was still held by American forces.

Such an evacuation operation for a defeated force, they noted, was notoriously one of the most difficult of all actions, and they pointed to General Wainwright's report that a counterattack by his first corps "failed due to complete physical exhaustion of the troops," as another factor militating against evacuation of many soldiers.

Bombers Join Attack

Heavy Japanese bombers also have attacked the area near the southern extremity of Bataan, nearest point to Corregidor, almost continuously in the last few days.

The entire Japanese army on Luzon, of which Bataan is a part, has been estimated variously all from 200,000 to 300,000 men, and as long ago as February 10 the war department was able to identify five Japanese divisions as being on Bataan by their numerical designations, with a sixth back on the communications line and an additional force manning the siege guns on the Cavite shore.

Overwhelmingly outnumbered, American-Filipino defenders facing the Japs were estimated here not to have exceeded two skeleton divisions in recent days, though forced to fight continuously day and night against an enemy able to throw fresh troops into the fray in relays.

One handicap suffered by General Wainwright was that a large proportion of the personnel behind the front lines was noncombatant, including wounded, supply troops and thousands of Filipinos who fled from their captured villages. All had to be fed from the defenders' limited food supplies.

East Flank Surrounded

The war department said General Wainwright had messaged that the Japanese had enveloped the east flank of his defending line.

"Full details are not available," the communique stated, "but this situation indicates the probability that the defenses on Bataan have been overcome."

Stimson said the figure of 36,853 effectives was in the report received yesterday from General Wainwright. He stressed that this figure included only the men fighting on Bataan at that time.

Excluded were American and Filipino troops guarding the defenses of Corregidor and the other islands, the wounded, nearly 20,000 civilian refugees, and some 6,000 Filipino laborers who were non-combatant.

Stimson disclosed that under the direction of Brigadier General Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war who is now minister to New Zealand, urgent efforts were made beginning last January 11 to reinforce the besieged Philippine troops.

From a base in Australia several ship loads of supplies were sent to the Philippines, and part of these supplies reached Corregidor and Bataan.

"But for every ship that arrived, we lost nearly two ships," Stimson said.

Because of these supplies, the defenders were never short of ammunition, the secretary said, but had been on short rations.

U. S. Strength Unreported

The number of American and Filipinos in the foxholes of the little peninsula has never been made known, but it was certain the invaders outnumbered them by several times.

Even the most optimistic observers had conceded that the Japanese, by sheer weight of numbers and force of fire power, eventually could drive the defenders back to the harbor fortifications of Manila bay.

The communique, No. 183 of the war, said:

"A message from General Wainwright at Fort Mills just received at the war department states that the Japanese attack on Bataan peninsula succeeded in enveloping the east flank of our lines, in the position held by the II corps. An attack by the I corps, ordered to relieve the situation, failed due to complete physical exhaustion of the troops.

"Full details are not available but this situation indicates the probability that the defenses have been 'overcome.'"

How many of the defending forces had reached Fort Mills

The body of Lt. Ralph D. Davis, 24, former Marion air corps pilot whose plane plunged into the North Carolina swamplands last Friday, was recovered some time this morning.

There were no further details.

The parents are at the L. D. May home on Chicago avenue. Their home is in Wellston, O., where the family moved from Marion about three years ago.

Berlin Says Wainwright Asks Japs for Armistice

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), April 9 — A Shanghai newspaper report said that Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, commander of the American-Filipino forces on the Bataan peninsula, asked for an armistice today.

This statement appeared in what was called a special report from the Bataan front to the Japanese newspaper Tairiku Shimpo.

This roundabout axis report is not confirmed in any way from any other source and, despite the attributed nature of its origin, does not in itself appear to have any official status.

EVEN DOLLAR WHEAT BRINGS NIGHTMARE

Where To Store Bumper Crop Is Problem.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, April 9—The age-old farmers' old dream of a bumper crop with quotations well above a dollar a bushel seems about to materialize.

But that rosy dream of a few years ago has turned into just another nightmare.

There's no place in the wheat belt to store the crop. A record carryover of 630,000,000 bushels is taking up all the elevator space, and the railroads, already working overtime to meet wartime demand, can offer little encouragement to grain shippers seeking elevator accommodations elsewhere.

Grainmen from Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma, meeting in Kansas City yesterday could offer only one solution—the grower, himself, is just going to have to provide his own storage space for the largest crop in 10 years, a crop expected to equal the amount of the carryover.

Frank A. Theis, member of the joint terminal committee of the Kansas City grain market, said that only about 8,000,000 of the listed 53,000,000 bushel elevator capacity of this key center was available. Similar conditions prevail elsewhere.

Pointing out that more than two thirds of the carryover—enough wheat to supply the country for a year—was under government control, Theis recommended that at least 15,000,000 bushels be moved to other storage.

He estimated there were 100,000,000 bushels of storage available outside of the principal wheat growing area, but locating it, and moving the grain to it over the glutted railroads was another matter.

MAN HELD AT DELAWARE FACES DESERTION CHARGE

Too Much Talking Lands John C. Luke in Jail.

DELAWARE, O., April 3—Charges of desertion from the army face John C. Luke, 30, who was lodged in the Delaware county jail following his arrest Tuesday by county officials. He will be turned over to federal authorities. He talked too much.

Luke was arrested at the Bert Stopher home in Delaware where he had lived for the last several months.

Drafted late in 1940, Luke was assigned to the medical department of the 6th infantry at Fort Knox. According to army officers, he was given a furlough on Aug. 7, 1941, from which he did not return.

Army officers learned of Luke's whereabouts following an accident Tuesday involving a Fort Knox army transport truck, an automobile and a delivery truck, according to Sheriff M. F. Pinney, who made the arrest upon army instruction.

Luke was among a group of witnesses of the accident who were rounded up by army officers in order to make a report upon return to Fort Knox.

When the officers called at Luke's home he told them he had deserted from Fort Knox and that the army had done nothing about it. The officers immediately notified the sheriff to make the arrest, and to hold Luke pending further instruction. According to Sheriff Pinney, Luke was intoxicated when he was arrested.

SECRET ORDERS

By ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Then strong arms lifted her, carefully.

CHAPTER ONE
Smash

STEPHANIE signalled, turned left into the stream of traffic pouring onto the Golden Gate bridge. Thrusting back the cuff of her trim olive-drab uniform, she glanced at her watch. Nearly five-thirty already. And the line of cars ahead moving like a Fourth of July parade. She shifted to second gear, held the sleek blue coupe down to a crawl and remembered that Aunt Allison had said dinner would be at seven. And dinner at Stonehurst meant white tie and tails!

Stephanie shrugged, tried to relax. She shouldn't have volunteered to take that extra duty at Headquarters this afternoon. She might have known she'd never be able to get away on time. She hadn't even had time to dash home and pack a bag. Now she'd have to borrow a dinner dress from Vicky who loathed lending things. She grimaced. Poor Vicky. The most beautiful deb in all Marin county and always afraid someone was going to challenge her title.

Her slim foot pressed the accelerator and the powerful little car lept ahead. She flicked on her highway lights, moved out into the center lane. Passing cars steadily, she finally saw traffic ahead thinning out. The highway curved gradually around the breast of a hill and the needle on Stephanie's speedometer crept toward sixty.

Then she saw the dog.

Only yards ahead as she came over the last rise, he dashed out into the center of the highway full into the path of her headlights. She stepped hard on the brake, signalled frantically.

The little dog stood, legs apart, as if transfixed.

"I'm going to hit him!" Stephanie heard her own voice shriek.

She swerved then, yanking the wheel, feeling the car lurch drunkenly. She held her breath as the whisk of white fur disappeared behind the curve of her fender. Then she let it go when there was no thud, no pained yelping.

"Missed him, thank—"

The word was jerked away, lost in the terrible scream of tires skidding on loose gravel.

Strong Arms

FOR the next few minutes, Stephanie went spinning down into a black vortex like some relentless maelstrom that sucked her farther and farther away from reality. Thunderous silence pursued her at first. One voice in particular—a mans' deep-throated command.

"Give me a hand here. We've got to get her out first."

Then strong arms lifting her slowly, carefuly. As in a nightmare, Stephanie struggled to rouse herself, to fight her way back through the gathering gloom. When she did get her eyes open, she looked straight up at the owner of the voice.

"That bank was the only thing that saved you," the man with a nice voice said dryly. "What happened? Do you know?"

Stephanie remembered then. "A dog! In the middle of the highway. I was just trying to avoid hitting it."

The tall young man—captain he was, Stephanie noted from the silver bars on his shoulders—took his head. "Nice for the dog but a little risky for other people on the road. Do you always drive like that?"

Stephanie stiffened. "Certainly not. It was just an impulse."

"Pretty deadly business—having impulses at sixty miles per hour."

"I realize that perfectly. And I'm sorry. I guess I just didn't think." He was perfectly right of course, she realized chagrined, but he needn't rub it in.

"That's obvious,"—dryly. Then to the men who had stopped to help, who were climbing back into their cars now. "Thanks a lot. Guess everything is under control now."

Everything, that is, Stephanie amended silently, except her rising ire. Because this good-looking soldier boy wore a uniform didn't make him a general.

"Thank you so much," Stephanie said sweetly and sat down on the battered running board of her scarred little car. "I don't mind waiting right here. There will be a highway patrol along soon. I wouldn't think of detaining you."

"It may be some time before the patrol arrives. You can't wait here alone."

"And why can't I? Or isn't this a free country any more?"

"It's a free country but a dark one and cold," he said and grasped her arm, pulled her to her feet. "I'd consider I had been negligent in the performance of my duty if I left you here."

She shook his hand off her arm, but she got into his car. "Just your Boy Scout deed for today, am I? Well, I'm not going with you so you might as well pursue your line of duty in another direction."

Age Twenty—Almost

HE laughed, a rich throaty sound from deep within his tall, lean frame. "No? And your uniform doesn't obligate you to drive as if the state highway were your own private race track, either." He glanced at her a moment: "Just what is the uniform for, anyway?"

"San Francisco Red Cross Motor Corps. Stephanie Merrill is the name. Age twenty—almost. Height five feet four. Weight 108 pounds. Anything else you'd like to know, sir?"

"Oh, good lord," his laughter burst out again, infectious and—infuriating. "I'll bet the S. F. Motor Corps doesn't know the risk it runs. Remind me to continue traveling by plane."

They stopped at the first garage, dispatched a tow truck for the battered little blue coupe.

"Okay, Captain Knudsen." The garage man wrote out a tag. "Where shall I have the young lady's car delivered?"

"To 18 Hillcrest Circle, please," Stephanie directed cooly. "Stonecrest Lodge. How soon can you—"

He shook his head. "Depends on the amount of damage, miss. Probably not until the middle of the week."

Stephanie sighed. She was going to have a lot of explaining to do.

"Can you get a taxi for me now?" she asked the garage owner.

He shook his head again.

She heard Captain Knudsen smother a laugh. "I'll be very glad to drive you to Stonecrest, Miss Merrill."

Furious, she stepped back into the Captain's car. "Thank you so much. I hate to impose."

"No imposition at all. It's a pleasure to help a lady in distress," he teased and added with a grin, "Especially girls with big brown eyes and devilish tempers."

Stephanie's laugh relented a little. "You'd be in a devilish temper too if you'd just smashed up your dad's birthday present and—"

"And been rescued against your will?" He slanted a smile at her.

She met his smile with a cool facsimile of her own. "Exactly, and by a Boy Scout whose gallantry is only exceeded by his conceit."

"Ouch!" He whistled softly. "That hurt. Conceited, huh?"

He turned into the gravelled road that curved to the top of the hill where Aunt Allison's spacious villa sat like a bejewelled duchess.

"A woman always grounds a flyer, eventually," he said and as he stopped the car in the drive already clogged with cars, he opened the door for her.

It was Stephanie's turn to smile teasingly, "And think what a great loss aviation would suffer if Captain Knudsen were to be grounded—eventually!"

"I don't know about that," he said, his smile not quite covering his seriousness. "I only know that flying happens to be the most important thing in life for me. I wouldn't be worth much if my wings were clipped."

"And I suppose—" still mocking him, "countless of the fair sex have tried time and time again to ensnare you, you poor dear."

"Sure," and laugh lines fanned around his blue eyes, "I just have to beat them off with clubs. It's terrible."

"It must be. When I hear of a nice safe hermitage. I'll let you know. Goodbye, now, and thank you so much."

She turned then, ran up the broad steps to Stonehurst's, uncomfortably aware that she'd behaved like a spoiled brat and that tall Captain Knudsen was laughing at her.

Questions and Answers About

VITAMINS

What are vitamins? Vitamins are essential foods, just as are minerals, proteins, fats and carbohydrates.

Why are vitamins so important? Everyone needs a full supply of vitamins to feel fit. They help the body use other foods properly—help build resistance to colds and infections. They are needed for normal growth in children.

Where do I get vitamins? From foods—especially the protective foods, milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables, meat, and whole-grain cereals. To make sure of getting enough vitamins, many people fortify their diets with a well-balanced vitamin-mineral supplement, like the new Vimms.

What are Vimms? They are little tablets. Easy to swallow and pleasant to eat. No yeasty or fishy taste. Vimms contain 6 vitamins and 3 minerals. Vimms give you the right amounts of all the vitamins you may need to fortify your diet.

Why six vitamins? Because there are six vitamins that authorities consider essential in the daily diet. Also because people who are deficient in one vitamin are likely to be low in others.

Do Vimms contain B Complex vitamins? Yes. Vimms have all 3 essential vitamins of the B Complex (B_1, B_2 and P-P). And they also have Vitamins A, D and C.

Why three minerals? Iron, Calcium and Phosphorus round out the team. Vitamin D, for instance, can do little for you without enough Calcium and Phosphorus.

Can Vimms give me all my vitamins? Yes. Vimms are a balanced vitamin-mineral food supplement. Of course, you also need other food elements as well.

Aren't vitamins expensive? Not when you get them in Vimms! They cost only a few cents a day, the lowest cost ever for any product of comparable type and potency.

Do I need extra vitamins? Government experts estimate 3 out of 4 Americans are not getting enough vitamins and minerals. If you are irritable, tired, "blue," if you are an easy victim of colds, you may be low on vitamins and minerals.

How often should Vimms be taken? Daily—regularly—like other foods. Vitamins are not stored in the body to any great extent.

THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1942

Change for the Better

DECISION to change the name of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps to War Savings Bonds and Stamps comes four months after the transformation in popular psychology from an attitude of defense to offense.

Pearl Harbor is being remembered as a horrible example of what can happen when the enemy is permitted to take the initiative. In a hundred ways since Dec. 7 and with increasing speed the last few weeks, the people of the United States have been breaking away from the notion that national defense is a sound and sufficient policy. In an era of great offensives, defense is not enough.

The United States has heard much of the dynamic drive of the totalitarian governments—a drive more often artificial than genuine. To the authoritarian propagandists it offers its own dynamism for what it is worth. It is tired of plans that call for sitting tight and holding fast to that which is good. It is eager to get up on its hind legs to go get its antagonists wherever they can be reached. It is in a mood to buy bonds for waging war aggressively, not defensively.

Rolling Along

TRANSPORTATION, nemesis of many a warring nation, has been complicated for the United States by Germany's successful submarine drive on coastal shipping. The government has announced an 800 per cent increase in tank car shipments of oil and petroleum alone to the eastern section of the country. Whole trains of tank cars have become a common sight on railroad lines.

This extra responsibility has been handled with no apparent complications. The railroads are doing what they said last summer they were equipped to do if it became necessary. At the same time, they are handling similarly huge increases in other freight loads. In the immediate future, they expect an enormous rise in passenger traffic, added to the already accelerating rate of passenger travel.

The situation recalls the premature burial of the railroad business by amateur morticians. It had been knocked into a cocked hat by trucks, buses and passenger automobiles, was the verdict. All that remained was to pick up the pieces and retire as much of the bonded debt as possible. The government might have to take charge to assure an orderly settlement. If not already dead, the railroads were mortally ill. They were at the mercy of competition that was too tough, labor that was too demanding, politicians that were so capricious. It is one of the few pleasant surprises of the war so far that the railroads seem to be doing what is expected of them so well that no one has had any reason lately to moan and groan about their condition.

Stretching It a Little

NOTHING so far has brought war home to Americans like the fact Japan has seized their rubber supply. While it is to be expected that the Japanese ultimately will try to make a deal to sell rubber to the United States, there is no indication at present that they will find a buyer. This country is going to try to create a new supply, using a combination of natural and artificial rubber.

This is the background for what seems to be attempt on the government's part to lay blame for lack of an artificial rubber supply on private enterprise. This amounts to the same thing as blaming the public for the government's failure to be prepared for war. As long as the government was pursuing a policy of appeasing Japan, surely only the government had the means of knowing whether or not the Asiatic sources of rubber were in danger of being cut off. Yet, the government, which did nothing, apparently, to encourage production of artificial rubber, now seems to feel that private enterprise should have done what it failed to do.

There is neither logic nor justice in this attitude. It is not a proper time to blame anyone for the things that weren't done before war started; it is not even a proper time to blame the government for trying to blame private enterprise. It is a proper time for only one thing—a concerted effort to make up lost ground. The people would feel much better about the rubber supply of the future if they knew that their government and the best skill of private enterprise were pulling together to produce rubber, instead of pulling apart to make scapegoats.

News Behind the News

Voluntary Censorship System Working Well, Despite "Tightening Up" Rumors.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 9—Talk is getting around town that the government contemplates strict censorship, not a check-up and order the present voluntary system is working very well.

The government has only two important matters to complain about, one is that some of the editors let their leader pay too much attention to the axis radio claims.

The government was caught in a rather tight situation when Rome blared forth recently "an unconfirmed rumor in South American shipping circles" that the Queen Mary had been sunk with 10,000 American troops on board.

The Rome radio did not hear that in shipping circles anywhere. It was concocted by the axis propagandists in Rome to find out where the Queen Mary was. They knew Washington did not know where she was, and therefore could not deny the story.

But the rumor involved a matter of such importance that someone in this government might have been sufficiently foolish to try to contact the Queen Mary by radio. Listening Nazi subs could thus detect her whereabouts.

If Washington did not try to check the rumor, it would have to let the scare story go undenied and thus serve axis purposes. It did that, but no one here liked it.

The Queen Mary was not sunk, of course, but a lot of mothers whose boys in service had not been writing home from camps around the country as often as they should wrote the war department asking if their sons were on the Queen Mary.

Anyone should be able to classify off-hand a rumor from an axis radio, but anxious mothers may be inclined to read hastily and jump to unwarranted conclusions.

It is not likely, however, that Rome, Tokyo or Berlin will be able to play a trick like that one on us again.

Leaks

The only other real complaint is being remedied within the government. Some of the Allied capitals, particularly London, have been letting out matters of strictly American war business, which we considered secret. They will do so no more.

These are the only realistic objections heard here, and if any government officials are planning stricter censorship, their plans lack the virtue of necessity.

Certain politically inclined officials, worrying about their own prestige or the coming elections, have been complaining about criticism in the press. Much has been made of an off-the-record speech by one government publicist asking how long the administration will tolerate what he called "subversive criticism."

There have been rumors that the Mac Leish office of facts and figures would be combined with the Mellett office of government reports, to the elevation of Mr. Mellett and the decline of Mr. Mac Leish.

There have been rumors that an overall government censorship would be established to screw down the lid on news, and even a conversational suggestion that every published news story be submitted to censors before publication.

These rumors are not imaginative speculations of persons outside the government, but they may be the result of inter-office competition in the government, and therefore are not necessarily a forerunner of action.

The fact is, however, that as far as disclosure of military secrets is concerned, more censorship is not justified.

Japs

The Jap radio is just as bad as Rome and Berlin. The Jap broadcasters have sunk the Lexington three or four times by radio but not any other way. They "captured" Port Moresby and Akyab last week, and "reduced" Corregidor half a dozen times.

The records of all the axis stations clearly demonstrate they are not entitled to any consideration. Their job is not to dispense truth, but to go to any lengths necessary to achieve victory over us.

Shrewd judges of sentiment within congress suggest a majority would vote to increase the base-pay week (before overtime) from 40 to 48 hours. However, even some of the strongest critics of labor there are not anxious for action. Certainly congress is doubtful.

But this and related economic issues of prices and wages now seem only to be in a state of preliminary fermentation. The Pepper plan to freeze everything except the Capitol dome must be considered in the light of his established position as front runner and tryout advance agent for the administration. Raising the base pay in the army has also helped to quiet some critics of the 40-hour week, and delayed action.

The latest tendency, both in the executive and congressional branch, thus seems inclined to wait until the labor shortage develops in the months ahead, or economic necessity arises for drastic economic steps.

Our Steel Problem

Why We're on the Hunt for Jaloppies and Junk.

By RAY BLOSSER
Wide World Writer

CLEVELAND, April 9—Our war-vital steel production has declined for lack of scrap, causing a lot of people to search vacant lots and basements for jaloppies and junk.

But what's it all about? Perhaps you'd like a look at some of the answers.

Q—First of all, how do you make steel?

A—Being very general about it, you make it in plants which have (1) coking ovens to transform coal into coke; (2) blast furnaces, which feed on iron ore, coke and limestone to produce pig iron; (3) converting furnaces, principally of the open hearth type, which blend the pig iron with scrap to produce steel ingots weighing two tons or more, and (4) rolling mills or presses to squeeze the glowing ingots into plates or other finished products.

Q—What is the ratio of pig iron and scrap used in making steel?

A—Before the defense programs came along, it generally was about 55 per cent scrap and 45 per cent pig iron. The proportion varied considerably from plant to plant, however. Now, with scrap hard to get, the percentage of pig iron in open hearths has been boosted in many cases to 55 per cent and, where available, even higher.

Q—What happened to the scrap we had?

A—From 1935 through 1940, we exported 20 million tons of it, principally to Japan and Italy. Our 1941 consumption ran nearly 60 million tons, against 16,600,000 tons in 1940 and only 30,900,000 tons in 1917, the record year of the first world war.

Q—If we don't have enough scrap, why can't we use more pig iron?

A—There is more than one answer to that one. Using scrap saves time because most of its carbon and other impurities were removed when originally manufactured, and also makes it easier to gauge your quality. Our pig iron capacity is limited, too. Scrap was so cheap that there was no increase in total pig iron production capacity from 1924 to 1940.

Q—If we don't have enough scrap, what are we doing about increasing pig iron production?

A—We did expand it about five per cent last year by adding new stacks, increasing the size of old ones and by other technical improvements. A similar increase can be expected this year.

Q—Will that raise our steel production?

A—At least one leading steel engineer thinks not. Writing in Mining and Metallurgy, William A. Haven, vice president of Arthur G. McKee & Co. of Cleveland, says the additional pig iron will only serve to stem a downward trend in the output of ingots unless the decreasing rate of scrap collections can be halted. Any expansion of ingot production certainly "will require a much larger program for building new furnaces than any now under consideration, and one that cannot be of help before 1943," he believes.

Q—What are we doing about getting more scrap?

A—There are various collection campaigns. Under one by the bureau of industrial conservation, the magazine Steel says more than 3,000,000 tons is expected to be obtained from automobile graveyards during the next 90 days.

Q—Which is losing by decreased steel production—our war effort or civilian goods?

A—The answer isn't entirely clear, but Haven says it would seem the shortage will be only in peace-time civilian commodities. We have been short of some war steel, such as plates and alloy steels, but new plate mill capacity was brought in last year and some of the strip mills—of which there are plenty—are being modified and equipped with finishing facilities to handle plates up to three-quarters of an inch. Light armor plates for tanks are being rolled on some of the older type sheet and jobbing mills, and steel castings are being substituted to a considerable extent for tank and armor plate.

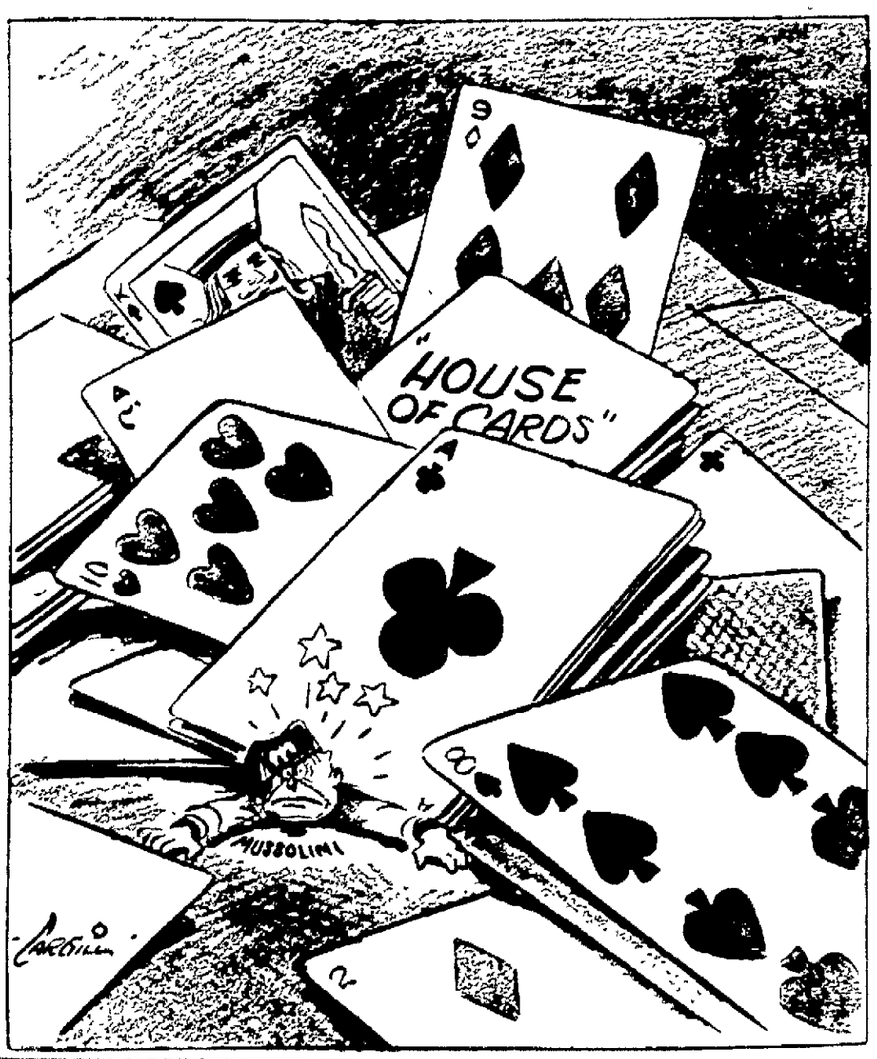
"LOST IN THE SHUFFLE"



Today and Tomorrow

New Phase of Mobilization Puts Test on U. S. Ingenuity and Inventiveness.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

WHILE Mr. Nelson was saying that "we haven't begun to tap the capacity of this country for war," the President was providing an excellent example by speaking of plans for a greater use of the inland waterways along the Atlantic coast and for the reopening of the old New England shipyards which used to build wooden schooners. These are the signs that we are about to pass into the final and most interesting phase of the mobilization.

We can perhaps understand it better if we look back briefly over the phases through which we have passed.

First, the pre-Dunkirk, that is to say before June, 1940. Weapons and supplies are bought from existing producers.

Second, the phase known as the defense program (1940-'41). An expanded arms program is "super-imposed" on business as usual. New war facilities are created by the great producing corporations alongside of their existing commercial facilities.

Third, the post-Pearl Harbor phase. The guiding principle here is the conversion of the peacetime facilities of the great producers, most impressively in the automobile industry.

Fourth, the littler business phase, just now really beginning, in which there are mobilized the small producers who in the aggregate are an immense reserve of plants, machines, skilled labor, and managerial knowledge.

Fifth, the phase of self-reliant ingenuity and inventiveness, which is still ahead of us but, as indicated by the President's interest in the old yards for wooden ships, is now in sight. In this phase men and women make much out of little. They do it by inventing substitutes and supplements. They do it by learning to do without many things. They do it by remembering how they got along before they had many of the things they can no longer have. Here are reserves of power which have scarcely begun to tap.

Reserve of Power

Until this last reserve of power is brought into the war, it may be said that our great economic resources are a liability as well as an asset. We are well aware how great an asset they are. We must also realize, however, that just because we are able to produce munitions on such a gigantic scale, there runs all through our planning a disposition to do most things on a much too luxurious scale. So used are we to being a rich nation that in equipping ourselves for war we are living on a standard of military life which is very much higher indeed than that of our enemies. The specifications of what we believe we want and the manner in which we go about filling them are shot through and through with the peace-time notion that there is really plenty of everything for everything.

There is not plenty of everything for everything. The effect of our luxurious ideas is not merely to use up badly needed labor, and managerial ability, and materials that are short. A more indirect, but in the long run even more serious, effect, is to make us think that things are not worth doing or that they cannot be done if they are not done in a great, big, lush and plush way.

This is most evident in what is now the most critical field of all—transportation by sea and land. We have a large shipbuilding program. Let us assume that it is as large a program of conventional cargo ships as the country can support. It is still a dangerously inadequate program. That being acknowledged, those who have the defeatist temperament will wring their hands. Others, who have the characteristic strength of the American people, will at once begin to devise and contrive and invent substitutes and supplements.

If we have no more steel for steel ships, they will fix their minds on wooden ships and on wooden barges. If we are losing ships on the coastal traffic because we are still short of naval escort vessels, they will turn to the protected inland waterways, to all kinds of small craft that can use them, to the railroads and to even more drastic curtailment of civilian supplies which depend upon transportation. To be sure, not every idea that is suggested here is a good one, and this way of doing things is by peace-time standards uneconomical and inefficient.

Dunkirk Example

But the tramps, the tugs, the excursion boats, the launches and yachts which evacuated the British Army from Dunkirk weren't standardized, conventional transports. Yet they did their work, and they wrote a glorious chapter in British history. Something similar is quite possible for us if in the same spirit we really make up our minds to smash the transportation bottleneck.

We shall be astonished and delighted at the undreamed of and impossible things we can do if once we cease thinking that nothing can be transported if it is not transported in the ships of a well conceived peace-time merchant marine. Though we have turned against the more obvious forms of business as usual, their ghosts still haunt us, causing us to insist on much too convenient and luxurious ways of doing what needs to be done. We forget that our forefathers transported a great many things in vessels and vehicles that are now superseded, and that somehow if we put our minds on it, we, too, can transport a great many things more in vessels and vehicles that could supplement very considerably indeed our principal, modern transportation facilities.

Where there is a will there is a way. For the full power of the will, it is necessary to think drastically, saying that any vessel which can move something somewhere over water is worth considering as a way of easing out the supply of shipping.

"His regiment voted me the girl most likely to get somebody court-martialed!"

WHEN a man starts to work for the Erie Railroad the first lesson he learns is the importance of time. Time is money, he is told. The Erie creed says the freight must go through safely and on time. Today time is more than money. Time is everything! An hour saved is an hour gained for Victory.

War materials are valueless on a shipping platform. It is only after they have been transported to where they are needed that they become priceless. Erie is doing its part to win the Battle of Time by providing fast, efficient transportation.

THE marriage of Miss Martha Ann O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Eugene O'Connor of 261 Bradford street, and Ensign Martin Donald Lieb of Washington, D. C., was solemnized at 9:30 o'clock this morning in St. Mary Catholic church. Rev. Father Dr. Charles E. Park, pastor of St. Michael church at Sunbury, Pa., read the ceremony and was the celebrant for the solemn high mass.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her gown of white duchess lace was made princess style, with a heart-shaped neckline and long sleeves ending in points at the wrists. Bands of imported Chantilly lace trimmed the softly shirred bodice and extended the full length of the wide train. A ruffle of the same lace edged the skirt. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was held with a coronet of tulle and seed pearls and her crescent shaped bouquet of snow white carnations was centered with an orchid.

Miss Jeanne Brick of Columbus was maid of honor and only attendant. Her gown was of madonna blue marquisette. The tightly-fitted basque-like bodice was trimmed with scrolls of trapunto, and very full skirt was trimmed with bands of the trapunto. Her large blue picture hat had matching streamers which fell below the waist and she carried a Colonial bouquet of pale pink carnations with an embossed frill matching the color of her gown.

Serving as best man for Ensign Lieb, who is the son of Mrs. A. W. Lieb of Sunbury, Pa., and the late Mr. Lieb, was his brother, Aloysius Lieb of Sunbury. Ushers were Paul Lieb of Toledo, also a brother of the bridegroom, and the bride's brother, Gene O'Connor.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. O'Connor chose a navy blue costume with which she wore white accessories and a corsage of cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a powder blue dress with harmonizing accessories and her flowers were a corsage of pink camelias.

The gold vases on the main altar held all white gladioli and stocks and completing the decorations in the sanctuary were two large white baskets of the same flowers.

The Mass in Honor of Our Lady of Pompeii was sung by St. Mary choir with Miss Rosaline Manzo at the organ. For the offertory Franck's "Ave Maria" was sung for the processional Wagner's march was used. As the bridal party left the church the choir sang the Easter Alleluia.

Following the mass the bride's parents were hosts at a breakfast for 60 guests at Ringer's Inn.

Later when the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a yellow and brown print costume with a brown felt hat and harmonizing accessories. They will live in Arlington, Va.

The bride was graduated from the School of the Brown County Ursulines, and since last September has been in the sales tax division in the office of the county treasurer.

Bogart-McMahan Vows Spoken at Epworth Church

ANNOUNCEMENT is being made today of the marriage of Miss Marian Bogart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bogart of 525 Ballentine avenue, and Charles E. McMahan, son of Mrs. C. L. McMahan of Wooster, which took place Sunday afternoon.

Epworth Methodist church was the scene of the wedding and the couple repeated the double ring ceremony, read by the pastor, Dr. S. M. Ingmire, at 2:30 o'clock. For the service the altar was decorated with palms, Easter lilies and lighted white candles in two seven-branch candelabra. A basket of pink gladioli completed the decorations.

The bride, given in a marriage by her father, was gowned in white slipper satin and her fingertip veil of bridal net was held with a tiara of seed pearls. The gown was fashioned with a long waist and leg o' mutton sleeves, was accented with a sweetheart neckline trimmed with pearls. Self-covered buttons trimmed the back of the gown to the waistline and the skirt extended into a short train. Her only ornament was a three-strand pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink rosebuds and calla lilies with white ribbon streamers.

Miss Naomi Miller, a classmate of the bride, was her maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Maxine McMahan and Miss Donna Brown. Miss Miller's gown was of blue chiffon with a round neckline, short, puffed sleeves and a full skirt. The bridesmaids' gowns were of pink taffeta, trimmed with blue velvet ribbon, and had round necklines and puffed sleeves. They wore gold lockets, gifts from the bride. The maid of honor carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and calla lilies with white silk streamers, and the bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of white carnations and yellow rosebuds with white streamers.

Serving as best man for Mr. McMahan was his brother, Ralph McMahan, and ushers were James Feaver and Warren Cyders.

Mrs. Robert Rice, organist and Robert Rice, vocalist, presented a half-hour of nuptial music preceding the ceremony. Mr. Rice sang Herbert's "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," and "I Love You Truly," by Bond. Mrs. Rice's selections were "Nocturne," from "Mid Summer Nights Dream," by Mendelssohn, "At Dawning," Cadman, "Because," d'Hardelot, "Oh Promise Me," De Koven, "Lieberstraum," Liszt, "A Love Story," intermezzo, Provost, "Salut D'Amour," Elgar, and "Indian Love Call," Frime. Mrs. Rice played "Bridal Choir," by Wagner and "Mendelssohn's Wedding March" for the processional and recessional.

Mrs. Bogart chose for her daughter's wedding a redingote costume of navy blue with white accessories, and a matching hat and wore a corsage of pink rosebuds. Mrs. McMahan was costumed in black crepe with black accessories and her corsage was also of pink rosebuds. About 50 guests attended a reception at Ringer's Inn immediately following the ceremony. Appointments for refreshments were in pink and blue and the wedding cake was at one end of the table. PORK PRICE CONTROL RAISES NEW PROBLEM

Meat Packers Feeling Pinch of Program.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 9—Efforts to control wholesale pork prices while purchasing large quantities of pork for lend-lease export appeared today to have brought government agencies face-to-face with one of the knottiest problems yet to confront the anti-inflation program.

Annoyed by what they termed an inequitable situation, representatives of small meat packers gathering here have sent a delegation to Washington to see if some changes can be made in the wholesale pork ceilings or in agriculture marketing administration buying policies.

Trade circles said smaller packers were caught between rising hog prices, which are at 16 year peaks, and the frozen wholesale pork price structure. Some of the smaller packers even might be confronted with the possibility of closing their business.

The plight of the smaller packers as they presented it at their meetings, is the result of the following aspects of the pork situation:

The office of price administration has placed "temporary" ceilings over 90 per cent of all wholesale pork products. This was done to protect consumers from higher pork meat costs.

2. The agricultural marketing administration is buying large quantities of pork for lend-lease shipment to allied nations, and these purchases may be made at 2 cents a pound above the OPA's ceilings.

3. The AMA, however, buys only from federally inspected plants, and many small packers are state inspected. This means the federally inspected plants can sell about 40 per cent of their pork products at higher prices than those plants not federally inspected.

4. Federally inspected plants, therefore, have more leeway in buying hogs, and are able to bid up prices. If they are to get any hogs, smaller plants also must pay higher prices, but must sell all their output under wholesale ceilings.

CHAPTER 25

Randy

AND then Randy turned his head as though she had called to him, and their eyes met. And she caught her breath with a little sob in her throat because it was Randy!

For a moment across the room they stared at each other. And then, forgetful of her partner, forgetful of everything except that Randy was there, within the same four walls that held her, she began to run, stumbling a little, across the room. And Randy came to meet her.

They came together almost in the center of the big room, and it meant nothing to either that the room was filled with people who looked on, wide-eyed, as Melissa stumbled into Randy's arms that closed hard about her while her own arms clasped him even closer.

"I heard you sing tonight—and I couldn't keep away any longer," said Randy huskily.

Ann looked swiftly about the room, at the curious, puzzled intent faces, and smothered a little giggle as she said politely, "They are old friends, you see!"

"One would think so, indeed," said the host chuckling a little. "Perhaps they would like a bit of privacy—"

"I wouldn't be at all surprised," agreed Ann, and laid a hand on the shoulder of each as she bent her head and said sternly, "See here, you two—such goings on—and with three press-agents and a couple of columnists present! Come along with Aunty Ann!"

Out on the terrace, in a corner secluded by thickly growing vines, where a cluster of white wicker chairs stood about among green painted tubs of growing plants, Ann left them.

"Oh, Randy—how could you send me away? How could you hurt me so terribly?" wailed Melissa, after a shaken moment of savoring the exquisite joy of being in his arms.

"I hurt myself a million times worse, if that's any comfort to you, sweet," said Randy, almost grimly serious. "But don't you see, dearest—this is what I wanted for you? A place of real importance—the chance to really be somebody—to get somewhere."

But, Randy, I was completely happy on the show boat—I'd have been happy anywhere with you—and I couldn't be happy anywhere without you!" she pointed out shakily, creeping closer in his arms as though to reassure herself that he was really there and that this wasn't some exquisite, golden dream from which she would awake to find that he wasn't there at all.

"I know, sweet, but I wanted something better for you," said Randy swiftly. "That day at the races when those people spoke of you as 'a gambler's female associate,' I wanted to kill them! And then I thought of Irene—and that you would have to make friends of women like that if you stayed on the show boat with me—and so I sent you away."

Wordlessly Randy put two fingers into his pocket and brought out a slim platinum hoop out of which the moonlight picked more fire. He said, his voice not quite steady, "What do you say if we sneak off somewhere where they don't have the silly three-day delay in marriage licenses—and put this ring to good use?"

There was only one possible answer to that. But when she had made it, a pleasant, friendly voice spoke from the shadows, saying briskly, "Of course she will—what else did you expect? And if we are going to get back by tomorrow night in time for my serial, we'd better step on it. The car's waiting."

Randy and Melissa whirled about to face Ann, who stood waiting, the soft mistiness of her evening wrap tucked about her, the moonlight on her friendly, lovely face.

"Oh, don't look so startled," she said hastily, as though reading their thoughts. "I haven't been here all the while. I got here just in time to hear Randy pop the good old question—and I thought you'd be interested to know that Todd and I have made all the arrangements just across the line in Maryland and that the car's waiting."

Melissa said eagerly, "You mean you and Todd will go with us?"

"Well, of course—you have to have witnesses, don't you?" answered Ann promptly, and turned a stern gaze on Randy. "And in case this—er—young lug looks as though he meant to run out on you, we'll be along at step him!"

"Thanks for taking care of her, Mrs. Beasley!" said Randy simply but vigorously.

"You're welcome," said Ann. "Only the job is yours now, young fellow—and if ever you hurt her again or make her unhappy—I'll hunt you up and tear you apart with my bare hands!"

"Do that," said Randy earnestly, "because I'll deserve it."

"Johnny, Where'd You Get Your Gun?"

From the supply sergeant, of course. He got it from the Ordnance Department — and they got it from a factory. It's the finest Army rifle in the world.

But before one factory wheel could turn—for the first model or the finished job—these had to be POWER—and most of it is ELECTRIC. Electric power helped put your Garand in your hands, Johnny.

It takes a tremendous LOT of power to make all the guns, tanks, planes and ships we need—but America HAS a lot. Power reserves, built up in advance by the business men who manage America's electric companies, have been able to meet almost every defense demand overnight.

Requirements keep increasing, of course—and the electric companies are working to keep ahead of the nation's needs. In 1941, they built and installed almost 2,000,000 more horsepower in Democracy's busy arsenal!

We pledge our cooperation with every "Johnny" of Uncle Sam's, whether on land or sea or in the air, and with the Government and other industries—to make America so strong she will achieve an enduring Victory

A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM THE FOUNDER OF THE J. C. PENNEY COMPANY:

A TREMENDOUS TASK LIES AHEAD OF US!

Today America is at war. Now, in wartime, because of the tremendous job ahead of us, we must learn again to work hard and to live simply — to put into the preserving of America what we once put into the building of it — to return to the old ways of Thrift and Savings that were the general rule at the beginning of this century.

We feel that the Penney Company is peculiarly well equipped to make a substantial contribution toward the Thrift and Savings of the nation—because the Penney Company knows from long experience what thrift is all about.

Thrift is nothing new to the Penney Company — it is our stock in trade. When the Penney business was founded, in 1902, hard work, and spartan living were the general rule. Our first little store in Kemmerer, Wyoming was dedicated to Thrift, and all through the years, as our business has grown, Thrift has continued to be our guiding principle.

THRIFT AND SAVINGS ARE A BIG PART OF THE JOB

The Penney Co.'s practice of Thrift and Savings is evidenced in everything we do: We buy for cash and sell for cash; we make no deliveries; we eliminate all costly frills and extravagances; we operate on an extremely small margin of profit per transaction; we buy at the source in the most economical quantities; we save at every turn! All this means that now when Thrift and Savings mean more than ever, it will pay you, it will save precious dollars for you, always to shop first at Penney's.

WE REDEDICATE OURSELVES, TODAY, ON OUR 40th ANNIVERSARY, TO THE SERVICE OF AMERICA

We rededicate ourselves to Thrift and Savings. We rededicate our 1600 stores, which now stretch from coast to coast, to the great job of helping American families to continue to live well for less.

THE PENNEY WAY IS THE THRIFTY WAY—THE THRIFTY WAY IS THE AMERICAN WAY!

ARMY HEADQUARTERS BURMA—(Delayed)—... enemy planes al... read was the only ... Mandalay's quarter... tyrants received of ... larger Shells of ... ...des with ear-splitting ...re more than a few persons could dive into narrow slit trenches which provide inadequate shelter from air attack.

Bomb fragments rained on the squalid, teeming Indian and coolie refugee camps on the north side of the railway yards. Two corners of a big brick civil hospital and buildings near the station were blasted into dusty rubble.

A line of bungalows behind the hospital was smashed to bits. The tile roof of the Princess of Wales hospital in the same street was blown in.

One wave of bombers finished their work and as fires mushroomed in scores of wrecked buildings, a second wave came over. There was no opposition.

Hot Breeze Spread Flames

The hot breeze that usually fans dusty, sprawling Mandalay at midday pushed the flames through block after block of the dense wooden tenements of Chinatown and into palm-fringed Buddhist monasteries.

The fire spread eastward into a district of elegant two-story bungalows owned by rich Burmans.

Blazes sprang up around the Methodist and Baptist churches and the Catholic cathedral. All were soon smothered in leaping flames which left only the walls standing.

Inside the Mandalay fortress the hospital and barracks in the southeast corner caught fire. Sweating Indian riflemen bore the wounded to safety on their backs.

Under a rain of embers screaming, burning men, women and children flung themselves through the purple water hyacinths into the fortress' shallow moat.

Engineers, in fierce heat, planted dynamite charges and blew up buildings in an attempt to limit the holocaust before all Mandalay was destroyed.

Wounded Carry On

British army engineers and British and Indian crews saved hundreds of freight cars. Wounded men helped carry out the salvage job.

A British captain with a bomb splinter in his right arm filled my jeep with gasoline opposite a burning two-story Indian foodstore and told me of a detour which would let me deeper into the fire area.

"You can sling a stretcher across the jeep," he said. "There are people lying around in the streets in the middle of that bloody thing."

I drove through an alley near the fire-cloaked civil telegraph headquarters and raced along the east side of the native Bazaar which had not yet burned, although shops across the way were crackling and the jeep had to dodge hot sheets of tin roofing falling on the sticky asphalt road.

By a tangle of wires under a telephone pole I saw the bodies of two Indians. Their legs were burned to stumps.

A decapitated Burman woman lay sprawled by the drain in front of a native teashop.

Two priests, protecting their shaven heads with flaps of their orange robes, stood by a garden wall staring mutely at the disaster.

Both floors of the American Baptist mission's little memorial hospital were filled with victims. More arrived in what seemed to be an unending procession of horror.

D. O. Smith, a missionary teacher from Long Beach, Calif., lifted from a stretcher an Indian boy who had just died.

Gordon S. Jury and his wife, elderly medical volunteers from Hamilton, O., knelt on their knees sponging blood from the wounded.

A young Burmese mother nursed her infant daughter as Fred Dickson, another missionary teacher from Wooster, O., disinfected a gash in the baby's hip.

The wounded driver of a Burma government civil defense ambulance, whose own wife and child were killed in the raid, followed me into the hospital yard.

"One little bit of warning would have saved hundreds of lives," he stormed. "No real air raid shelters. . . No planes to defend us. We are left like cornered rats at the mercy of those Japanese. A handful of volunteers are about the only people standing between the wounded and death. Why is it that the poor and the helpless are the ones killed in this war?"

GRAIN MARKET ACTIVITY LOW

Board Continues Although Trading in Many Commodities Restricted.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 9 — War has halted normal trading in many commodities, but dealings in grain futures are continuing on Chicago's board of trade, although market activity is near a record low.

During the first month and a half of 1942 there was a spurt in grain market operations which made cereals the most active of commodities in which more or less free trading is still conducted but volume of business since then has fallen off and recently has been running below that of a year ago.

For the first three months of the year transactions in all grain and soybean futures on the board of trade totaled 1,143,151,000 bushels compared with 1,004,818,660 the corresponding period last year, a gain of almost 5 per cent. There was a sharp drop in trading in wheat but volume of dealings in corn more than doubled and rye trade was ten times that of the first quarter of 1941. Trading in all grains in March was 30 per cent better than in February but 20 per cent less than a year ago.

Grain men attributed the slump in market volume largely to unwillingness of investors to take risks in view of uncertainty associated with the war and with phases of the government program affecting prices and marketing of farm commodities. Furthermore, restrictions on market activity under various trading rules and taxes limiting possible profits but offering no relief from losses have made the market less attractive to dealers. Grain men pointed out, however, that this apathy is not confined to the cereal market but affects other branches of trade as well.

As a result of the slow business the price of memberships on the board of trade have slumped to near the all-time low. A seat sold for $100 this week compared with a peak of $62,000 in 1929.

Establishment of price ceilings or suspension of dealings have halted or greatly restricted futures trading in such commodities as sugar, copper, zinc, lead, tin, rubber, silk and certain fats and oils. Still enjoying moderate business are cotton, produce and grain exchanges. Futures trading still is conducted in flaxseed, butter, eggs, potatoes, lard, hides, cottonseed meal, soybean meal, cottonseed oil, coffee, cocoa, pepper, soybean oil, wool tops and grease wool but in many instances dealings are virtually at a standstill with prices at ceilings.

No Restrictions On Home-Made Clothes

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 9—Women may make dresses at home for their own use or their children's use not required to conform to the clothing order issued yesterday by the war production board.

However, home dressmakers who sell their handiwork for profit and anyone else who makes clothes for sale must comply, Stanley Marcus, head of WPB's women's apparel section, told a conference of fashion writers here today.

"The millions of women who make their own clothes copy their things from existing fashions," said Marcus, explaining why the order did not cover home dressmakers. "We are confident that they will follow the existing trend of fashion in the future as in the past."

An order setting forth specifications for pattern making is being studied, he said, and it was thought likely that pattern companies too would follow the fashion trends set by influential designers and manufacturers.

Crucifix Saves Life of Flier in Australia

By The Associated Press

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AUSTRALIA, April 9—Clarence Sanford, an Alabama university graduate from Auburn, N. Y., reported today how his life was saved by a silver crucifix he habitually wears around his neck.

Crossing Japanese planes over the Pacific, Sanford's fighter plane ran out of fuel and he had to bail out, drifting in the water three miles from a small island.

He said he slipped off all his clothing in order to swim to shore, except for his crucifix.

He met a native on the beach, one of whom could speak English and asked, "You Jap?"

Sanford said he was about to be impaled when the native spied the crucifix and exclaimed, "Jesus number one man!"

The friendly natives led the pilot five miles along to the Brewer mines station and a jeep ride brought him back to Australia.

Likens Chapel Furnishings Sold

Fixtures and furnishings of the Likens Chapel Methodist church were disposed of at public sale last night, the final step before the congregation says farewell on Sunday night.

Yesterday morning the property was appraised by government officials who will take over the building in connection with the new Scioto Ordnance plant.

The pastor, Rev. Donald Lyon, presided for the sale, which brought approximately $150. The North East Ohio conference will decide whether money shall be turned over to the conference or given to the Kirkpatrick and Claridon Methodist churches for building and maintenance purposes. The three churches are on the charge served by Rev. Lyon.

The Nazarene church at Mt. Gilead purchased the pews and pulpit, First Church of the Brethren of Marion bought the communion service and the Iberia Federated church bought the register board and collection plates. These were the major items sold. They will not be removed until after the farewell services.

Everything was disposed of except the furnishings of the Ladies' Aid society, tables, silverware and dishes. The silverware and dishes are marked and the women decided to buy these articles among themselves.

The farewell service will be conducted Sunday night at 8. At 7:30 there will be a young people's meeting. Sunday school classes will meet at 10:30 a. m.

Expansion of plants for war production and other projects essential to the war effort will make 1942 the biggest year in the history of construction, according to the Department of Commerce.

BRITISH LOSE TWO CRUISERS

Jap Planes Send Ships Down in Bay of Bengal; 1,100 Crewmen Rescued.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 9 - Two British 8-inch-gun cruisers, the 10,000-ton Cornwall and the 9,975-ton Dorsetshire which torpedo fanned off the German battle ship Bismarck little less than a year ago, have been sunk by Japanese bombers ranging the Bay of Bengal and battering at tremendous British naval communications to India, the admiralty announced today.

The shock of the loss of the two powerful ships rushed the gill off the admiralty's announcement two hours earlier that a British submarine had sent a 10,000-ton Italian cruiser to the bottom of the central Mediterranean.

Blow To British

The sinking of the Cornwall and Dorsetshire was a blow to the British naval strength immediately available to cope with Japanese aircraft carriers and warships reported increasing their activities astride the sea lanes to Calcutta in the bay between the bombed coast of India and invaded Burma.

7 Die of Heart Attacks in Los Angeles Blackout

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, April 9 — Seven persons died of heart attacks and an air raid warden fell off a two-story building and was injured critically as the Los Angeles area blacked out an hour and 51 minutes last night. The blackout was ordered because of the "presence in the Los Angeles area of unidentified planes which later were identified as friendly," reported Lieut. Col. John L. DeWitt of the western defense command, at San Francisco.

GOV. BRICKER SPEAKS TO BUCYRUS SCOUTS

Ohio Executive Addresses Annual Banquet.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, April 9 — Bucyrus Boy Scouts, who each year bring a speaker of prominence to Bucyrus for the annual Scout banquet, Wednesday night achieved their highest distinction in bringing as their guest speaker Governor Bricker, in his first official visit to the city. Two hundred and forty persons attended.

In his address, delivered especially to Scouts, who attended with Scouters, parents and friends, Gov. Bricker, himself the possessor of the Silver Beaver scouting award, used the scout oath as the theme.

"If you live the scout laws, so will you live the laws of life as you grow into manhood," the governor said. He told the boys the community expects more of scouts because of their advantages of training.

"Build the kind of community for which our armed forces are fighting," he challenged, "be true to yourselves, your parents, your friends."

From the Boy Scout meeting, which was held in St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, Governor Bricker went to the high school and spoke to a large group in a civilian defense class. He complimented them on their interest and discussed briefly the state's civilian defense program.

Gov. Bricker was introduced at the Boy Scout banquet by Rowland B. Peters, district scout chairman. James McFarland, district commissioner, presided.

Mr. Peters was reelected district chairman. John Wyer was elected district treasurer. Mr. Peters reappointed Mr. McFarland to the office of district commissioner.

Recognition was paid to Scout masters of the district and each Scout master was presented with a framed autographed photograph of Gov. Bricker for his respective troop.

Music during the dinner was provided by Mrs. Jenola Ackerman and Mrs. Velma Emig, accordionists. Rev. L. E. Dietzel offered the invocation and benediction was given by Rev. H. A. Blum.

SUGAR REGISTRATION SET FOR APRIL 28, 29

Stores, Restaurants, Etc., To Sign Up at High Schools.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 9—State Defense Director Courtney Burton today set April 28 and 29 as registration dates for retailers, wholesalers, industries and institutions seeking sugar rationing certificates.

He ordered country rationing coordinators to determine the number of such users of sugar who will be eligible to obtain certificates at Ohio's 1,123 high schools, where consumers will get ration cards May 4-7.

H. T. Beckman, staff rationing administrator, said the amount of sugar alloted the commercial and institutional crop would be determined by a mathematical formula established by the office of price administration.

Those with sugar supplies in excess of a limit soon to be announced would not be granted certificates, he asserted, while organizations failing to register must wait two weeks before applying to rationing boards for sugar allotments.

The certificates will be good until June 30, when they must be renewed, Beckman declared. Persons giving false information are subject to a fine of $10,000 or 10 years imprisonment, he added.

MARION COUNTY MAN MISSING IN DRAFT

Listed as Delinquent in Report to U. S. Court.

Kenneth Mohler, 22, of near Marion has been reported as a draft delinquent to the U. S district attorney in Toledo by Marion draft board 3, it was announced today.

Draft board clerks said the delinquency report was filed because "it is believed Mohler violated the selective service act in that he failed to report for induction March 30."

The whereabouts of the registrant is unknown; his former employer reported to the draft board that he left his job March 28, presumably to be inducted March 30. He was employed at the Ohio Steel Foundry Co. in Lima. Mohler's parents say they are unaware of his whereabouts, the board clerk said.

Mohler's case is the first to have been reported from Marion to the Toledo office. There have been other failures for induction but a further check revealed whereabouts of the registrant before final delinquent papers were filed.

Mohler is described as having a ruddy complexion, wearing glasses, medium build, 147 pounds and five feet, 11 inches high.

INDIA

Japanese sea-borne troops supported by cruisers and destroyers had landed north of Akyab, Burmese port on the bay of Bengal, and had advanced within 30 miles of the Indian frontier.

2. London naval reporters said the "biggest naval battle in all history seems about to blaze up in the Bay of Bengal between the Japanese and British fleets."

In this connection, it was recalled that axis reports last week declared powerful British naval forces had been sighted speeding around the Cape of Good Hope enroute to the Indian ocean and the Bay of Bengal.

3. Striking at a key British naval base guarding India, Japanese bombers this morning attacked Trincomalee, on the northeast coast of Ceyon, just off the southern tip of India.

Simultaneously, two Japanese planes were sighted over Colombo, the Ceylon capital, where Japan suffered her heaviest aerial defeat of the war in an attack Easter Sunday.

4. New Delhi dispatches reported a rising note of optimism in the critical negotiations to mobilize India's 390,000,000 on the side of the United Nations.

Latest reports said a general understanding was as good as reached on the main issues between the dominant All-India Congress party, the voice of India's 270,000,000 Hindus, and Sir Stafford Cripps, British special envoy.

5. On the Burma war front, Chinese troops holding the eastern flank of the allied line were reported locked in heavy battle with Japanese invasion forces on the highway between Toungoo and Mauchi.

6. Fierce air-sea battles in the Indian ocean were indicated by imperial Tokyo headquarters, which asserted that Japanese forces had sunk two British cruisers and 21 allied merchant ships there up to last Tuesday.

At noon today 339 men and women were registered, representing virtually all the 10 counties in the district, Marion, Morrow, Knox, Union, Delaware, Licking, Madison, Franklin, Fairfield and Pickaway. More members and guests arrived for this afternoon's session at which the principal speaker was Mrs. Bertha Ashby Hess of Columbus, lecturer and consultant in mental and social hygiene for the state department of health.

This morning the Franklin county council's invitation to entertain the 1943 conference in Columbus was accepted.

Among those here for the conference, which was scheduled to close at 4:30, were Mrs. James M. Birrel of Ross-mayne, state president; Mrs. O. M. Rodeniser of Newark, Central district director; Mrs. R. G. Williams of Columbus, state director of family life education, Mrs. U. S. Curnutt of Dayton, state director of rural service, Mrs. Grace Sullevan, state secretary, and Mrs. F. E. Kirkwood of Springfield, director of the western district.

E. E. Holt, superintendent of Marion public schools, is state director of character education, the only state officer in Marion. Mr. Holt, County School Superintendent D. T. Mills and Mrs. H. E. Bracy, president of the Marion Parent-Teacher council which entertained the conference, greeted the visitors at this morning's opening session.

Galion Minister Speaks

Rev. Philip Auer of Peace Lutheran church in Galion, chose the conference theme as the subject of the first address on the program, delivered this morning.

"Placed along side of the constantly changing values of life, there are those which endure and last throughout life," he said. "Among these are human life, your child, the home, moral and spiritual values, friendships, education and devotion to country."

He spoke in part as follows:

"It is well for an individual now and then to ask himself: 'What am I worth?' To obtain the proper answer one must not look down into the face of men, but up into the face of God who has made man in His own image. There does man obtain a true evaluation of self.

"The most valuable possession in the home is your son and daughter. This cannot be taken as a matter of fact statement because there are many parents who, by their actions, indicate that they fail to realize and appreciate this truth. There is no end to the sacrifice and activity to which parents should go in helping their sons and daughters become real men and women of tomorrow.

"The source of all sound national life is the home. The home is more important than school or church for neither of these institutions can rise higher than the home. The fact that the majority of criminals today come from broken homes, indicates the important part which the right kind of a home should play in the life of the individual. Let us not make our homes mere eating places or rooming houses, but real homes where individuals live together as a family.

Record of Crime

"Along with many other changes in life has come a re-evaluation of the moral and spiritual values of life for many people. Many people in their lives indicate they no longer feel these values to be important. Only about 45 per cent of the people of our nation are even outwardly affiliated with any kind of a church. The fact that the average age of the criminal is only 19 years; that every 45 minutes of the day and the night a murder is being committed somewhere in the United States; that every three and one-half minutes a check is being forged; that four and one-half millions of our citizens are enlisted in the great army of crime—all indicates the need of a deeper appreciation of moral and spiritual values.

"The relationship of husband and wife, parents and children and friends with friends provides one of life's lasting values. Particularly when many other values of life have been lost the relationship in the home and among friends is something to be cherished as having lasting and worth while value.

"Education is something which one cannot go into the store and buy but having once obtained it, it is somethig that abides throughout life, giving a lasting satisfaction. We ought, therefore, to support our schools with our money and with our interest. We ought to more deeply appreciate the work which consecrated teachers are doing who have a greater part of the time of our children at their disposal than does anyone else.

"We are today, perhaps, appreciating the blessings of our American way of life as we never have before because we realize there is danger that they may be taken from us. Today we ought to use, not abuse, the liberties which are ours. Liberty does not mean free license. When we sing 'God Bless America' let us follow up our singing with a life that is devoted to country in such a manner that it will be possible for God to bless America. Let us pass on to our children the rich national heritage of liberty and devotion to country which is ours today."

Mrs. Birrel's Talk

Mrs Birrel, in her talk to the conference, said:

"One of the first calls for service came to the Ohio congress immdiatly after our October convention when your president was asked by the federal government to serve on the state advisory committee for the defense savings staff for Ohio."

She said the Ohio congress is being represented on the state consumer advisory committee of the state council of defense and the state salvage committee and that three of the Ohio congress chairmen are serving on state committees on citizenship, safety and recreation.

Other counties in the district are Morrow, Union, Delaware, Madison, Franklin, Fayette and Pickaway.

The appointments made today brought to six the number of field representatives named Courtney Burton, executive director of the state defense council, said the districts were created to expedite air raid warnings and blackouts and to speed evacuation of civilians from areas in event of aerial bombing.

BUILDING ORDER EFFECTIVE TODAY

U. S. Blocks All Construction Except for War Effort.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 9 — A drastic government order blocking virtually all new construction work, private and public, except for the war effort, went into effect today.

The war production board's order, issued yesterday, prohibited any residential construction other than maintenance and repair work if the cost was $500 or more, forbade any new agricultural construction of $1,000 or more, and specified that no other types of construction—commercial, industrial, recreational, institutional, highway or utilities, whether publicly or privately financed—could be started if the cost was more than $5000.

The only exceptions were in cases where specific government permission might be granted.

Further, said WPB, projects now under construction are being examined individually, and may be stopped "if the scarce materials to be used in them can be put to more effective use in the war program."

The order did not change existing regulations permitting constructing of residences, costing up to $6,000, in defense housing areas designated by the government.

The board said the purpose of the order was to allocate steel, copper, iron and other scarce materials away from unnecessary construction and into fighting material and needed defense housing.

Delay of Japs At Bataan Seen As Important Feat

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

As we seemingly come to the end of the gallant defense by the men who have been fighting our battle from the foxholes on the Bataan peninsula we can say prudently that our boys have done a grand job in the face of overwhelming odds. Their sacrifice will live forever in the memory of the homeland.

This amazing feat by the tiny army of Americans and Filipinos has played an important part in delaying the Japanese offensive in the southwest Pacific. Indeed, when the final day of reckoning comes it may be found that this operation vitally influenced the outcome of the war with Japan.

So salute to a great bunch of fighters and send luck to them in reaching the harbor fortresses and holding them!

* * *

The unexpected arrival of American Chief of Staff Marshall and Harry Hopkins in London rather curiously has to do with coordination of the Allied effort in the great offensives which already are getting under way and may make this the decisive year of the war.

In view of the lack of specific information it probably is natural that civilian thoughts should turn to the possibility of opening up a new front somewhere in western Europe to support the Soviet effort. The hope of such a project is something which burns hot in the hearts of all the Allied peoples.

Probably we are justified in believing that something of the sort might develop in due course, but we have no facts which justify us in jumping to conclusions. Suffice it to say that the Allies definitely are bent on offensive action, and are determined to use all justifiable initiative.

* * *

The fierce Nazi bombing of the British key naval bases at Malta and Alexandria, and the way in which that wily desert fighter, German Field Marshal Rommel, is feeling out the British lines in Libya, would seem to presage an axis offensive there. There are many indications that the heavily reinforced marshal is maneuvering into position for another drive against Egypt if and when his master gives the sign.

Former Marion Plant Worker's Child Drowned

Rita Kay, three and one-half-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jordan of 93 Park avenue, Tiffin, was drowned when she fell into a pool late yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred when the child was playing with a small boy in the neighborhood in a park across from the Jordan home.

The child was removed from the pool by her mother who went to look for her when she failed to see her playing in the park. She had left the house only a few minutes before. Efforts of a physician and the fire department failed to revive her.

Funeral services will be held Friday. Mrs. Jordan is a former resident of Upper Sandusky and prior to her marriage was employed in the engineering department of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. She was formerly Miss Catherine Bachman.

3,144 Personal Tax Returns Turned In

Harry V. Mounts, Marion county auditor, announced today 3,144 returns for personal property tax were filed up to the deadline March 31. He said it was expected about 3,500 returns would be filed.

Those who filed returns last year but who failed to do so this year will be checked, Mr. Mounts said. He said delinquents are subject to as much as 50 per cent penalty on their returns.

BATAAN

with General Wainwright was not immediately known.

An indication of the turn in the long, bitter battle for Bataan came yesterday with an announcement that the Japanese were continuing their drive "with great vigor." Japanese commanders for the most part advocate sharp follow-through attacks to prevent their opponents from reorganizing and reinforcing vital positions.

Write Bloody History

Since early January, American and Filipino troops have been writing history in bloody characters on the jungle-clad hills of the peninsula, lying west of Manila bay, first under General Douglas MacArthur, then, following his transfer to Australia, under General Wainwright.

There was the strongest evidence that the Japanese felt they had lost face by their inability to break the stubborn American defenses. On March 8 General MacArthur informed the war department of reports that Lieutenant General Masaharu Homma, commander in chief of the Japanese forces in the Philippines, had committed suicide in a Manila hotel suite formerly occupied by General MacArthur.

Homma was succeeded in command by General Tomoyuki Yamashita, whose troops captured Singapore.

Fort Mills, from which General Wainwright made his report, is one of the fortifications guarding Manila bay. It lies on Corregidor island, whose big guns have forbidden the harbor to the invaders' shipping.

A war department communique late yesterday had given notice of the increasing Japanese pressure against the men of Bataan.

"A heavy attack on our new positions is now in progress," it said. "Dive bombers and attack aircraft are bombing and machine gunning our front lines. Heavy bombers are continuing their attacks on our rear areas near the southern extremity of the Bataan peninsula."

Longest Sustained Drive

"The present Japanese attack is the longest sustained drive of the enemy since operations began in Bataan. Waves of shock troops have attacked almost continuously, without regard to casualties, which have been heavy on both sides. American and Filipino troops, including naval and marine contingents, have stubbornly resisted every advance. Repeated efforts of the enemy to land troops behind our lines have been frustrated by our beach defenses, manned largely by naval and marine personnel.

Officers familiar with Japanese tactics said assaults by fresh waves of infantrymen might be expected just after dark and just before daylight. They said that although American troops had withdrawn to new positions, Japanese commanders following the official combat regulations would attempt relentless attack to prevent reorganization and reinforcement of vital positions.

5 DIRECT BOMB HITS SANK U.S. DESTROYER

Ship Went Down After Reaching Darwin from Philippines.

By C. YATES McDANIEL
AP War Correspondent

MELBOURNE, April 9 — Five direct bomb hits by raiding Japanese planes sank the U S destroyer Peary at Darwin Feb 19 soon after she had arrived at that friendly harbor from the embattled Philippines, one of the 51 survivors said today.

He is Lawrence T Farley of West Virginia, a 28-year-old water tender who is recovering from bad burns received in the warship's last fight.

Farley said the Peary suffered some casualties at Cavite in the first Japanese attack on Pat Manila bay naval base, but "hit back hard and sustained little damage."

From the Philippines, Farley said, the Peary headed for Australia and entered Darwin's harbor just before the Japanese launched a fierce attack with dive-bombers and Zero fighters.

"Hell was soon popping," he said, "within a few minutes we received five direct hits."

One bomb struck the ship's another the after engineroom hatch and a third the galley passage.

"The blast from one bomb burned me badly and affected my eyes," Farley related. "But with a companion I made my way on deck and plunged overboard. Later a lifeboat from an Australian ship picked us up."

(The U S navy announced the sinking of the Peary, along with loss of the aircraft tender Langley and the naval tanker Pecos April 3.)

BRITISH

Italian fleet and sailed into port on the island.

The city of Valletta and its suburbs were said to show acres of dust-strewn ruins.

The Germans subjected Malta to its worst raid of the war Tuesday and were back in mass formations again yesterday.

Well posted observers, scanning Malta communiques, said the axis apparently was concentrating on the island's airports. They noted with concern official reports that defending fighter planes were badly outnumbered, and speculated whether this meant some landing fields in Malta already had been made unserviceable or whether the fighter plane maintenance had been hampered by the raids.

The Malta communique last night said RAF fighters destroyed or damaged 13 planes yesterday while anti-aircraft batteries destroyed or damaged eight.

Meanwhile, the British and the axis were ready to hurl their big middle east forces into the next round of the battle for Libya—even now the action may have stalled—and there was evidence on both sides of determination to make the fight decisive this time.

British imperial forces, with tanks and planes were reported in considerable force southward from Ain El Gazala, 40 miles west of Tobruk.

The British have with them in Libya a number of Aussie units, including a contingent of Poles. The whole force is ready, well-armed—thanks to United States supplies pouring in to the Middle East.

NEW CLUE FOUND IN INFANT DEATHS

Blood Reaction Believed To Be Cause in Many Cases.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, April 8—Discovery of a new factor in red blood cells which accounts for hundreds of infant deaths before or soon after birth was announced here yesterday.

It is a mysterious substance, unidentified and previously unknown, which makes babies poison their mothers and in a kick-back reaction kill themselves. The disease it causes is known by the formidable name "erythroblastosis fetalis," or death due to gradual drying of blood cells.

Dr. Philip Levine of the Newark, N. J., Beth Israel hospital aided by the Blood Betterment Association of New York, traced the cause of this ailment through a fine bit of medical detective work in which he isolated what he calls the "Rh" factor within cells. He declared he believed there were other yet unknown killing factors swimming in the blood stream.

Approximately one out of every 100 babies dies before birth, or shortly after because of this blood reaction. It is almost identical with the reaction which occurs if the type of blood given by a donor does not match with that of the person who receives it. Blood cells cling together, form obstructions in blood vessels and halt heart, kidney or liver action.

It is hereditary factor tied up in the chromosomes of the father or mother's cells which initiate new life.

The principal use of the discovery is to care for in testing the blood of the mother who may need a blood transfusion during or after childbirth, or in any other blood transfusion case, Dr. Levine told the congress.

SLOWER ROAD SPEED CUTS TRAFFIC DEATHS

Fatalities Decline Outside of Towns, Reports Show.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 8—Slower driving by Ohio motorists not only has conserved tires but save lives as well, Harry E. Neal, head of the state highway department's traffic safety division, reported today.

Deaths on state highways outside of municipalities dropped to 147 in the first three months this year, compared with 182 in the first quarter of 1941, he said, and the number of collision deaths dropped from 103 to 66, indicating slower speeds.

There was a five per cent gain in total accidents but Neal said an increase in highway patrol stations accounted for the gain since the patrol undoubtedly reported more mishaps.

All traffic deaths in Ohio, including cities, totaled 195 in January against 175 in January, 1941, but effects of tire rationing apparently were not felt until early February.

The Ohio highway planning survey found that January traffic density practically duplicated January 1941, but that it dropped 12.56 per cent in February, against the previous February.

Neal attributed a general reduction in traffic speed not only to drivers' desire to make their tires last but also to public officials for saner driving during the wartime emergency.

72-Hole Masters' Tourney To Begin Today: Hogan Favored

Expected To Be Last Masters' for Duration; Bobby Jones, Craig Wood Open Contest.

By The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 9—Over one of the world's loveliest golf courses, the royal family of the game starts play today in the 72-hole Masters' tournament, with the snarl of military motors overhead to remind them that this probably is the last sentimental

On The Local Front

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

Despite requests of federal authorities for Americans to keep mum, in other words "don't repeat rumors," baseball rumors continue to spread concerning the defunct Ohio State Class D circuit.

Only two weeks ago the high commissioner of minor leagues dealt a fatal blow in ordering the loop abandoned for at least one year. Difficulties arising in sponsorship of the Findlay team were blamed for the sudden, but long expected death of the league of which Marion was a member two years ago.

For a month and maybe more prior to the passing away of the financially-troubled organization league officials released reports that Marion businessmen were attempting to make arrangements for the purchase of the Findlay or Mansfield franchise. Either one, the official was quoted as saying, would do. Marion was not particular.

This end of the wire turned Marion upsidedown in an effort to locate the potential team backers. That would have been a darned good news story and, if I might say, a welcome occurrence. But lo, the backer was not to be found nor could league officials be located to verify reports bearing their names.

The results became known ten days ago. The league passed out of the picture, but not the hopes step at Bobby Jones' course until after the war.

Even though they have been playing against each other all winter, the boys seemed not to realize that the big bust-up was at hand until they landed here. Now they do, and it has given them an added incentive to win the most coveted of the titles, excepting only the Open. It was a tense, tightly-wound field of 42 that teed off today.

The Masters', though it was what might be called a "manufactured" tournament to begin with, has in the last eight years taken a remarkable hold on the players. One and all, they look forward each year to receive one of the big embossed invitations, and when none shows up they are crestfallen.

Partly, no doubt, it is because they are playing in the same field with Bobby Jones. It seems almost unbelievable that such mechanically perfect players as Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson should stand in such honest awe of Jones. But they do, and to their credit.

Perhaps this gives another angle on the appeal of the Masters. The pairings are made with an eye for the dramatic. They do not pull names out of a hat. At 2 o'clock today Jones goes down the first wide fairway with Craig Wood, the defending champion and the 1941 open champion. They will carry the gallery to the exclusion of the Nelsons, the Hogans, the Picards and the Littles.

And further down, playing together, will be little Bobby Cruickshank, the "wee Scot" whom Jones defeated in a playoff for the 1928 Open crown, going around with Tommy Armour, who won in 1927.

The overwhelming favorite to win is Hogan.

Training Camp News

ENID, Okla.—The Pittsburgh Pirates will field one of the youngest teams in the majors when the baseball firing begins in earnest next week. Exclusive of batterymen, the Pirates' opening day lineup will average 25 years per man. The Bucs and the Philadelphia Athletics resume their training series here today after being kept idle by weather the past two days.

• • •

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—After being forced to pass up a $2,500 advance sale in Lexington, Ky., because of weather, the Boston Red Sox and the Cincinnati Reds came here today to wind up their fifth consecutive northward series. Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox picked Joe Dobson to pitch for the Red Sox, who have dropped six of the 11 games.

• • •

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—The death of Paul Derringer's baby son, Lucien Paul, makes it unlikely that the Cincinnati Reds' ace will pitch the season opener against the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday. He left the team for Sarasota, Fla., yesterday.

• • •

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — The Cleveland Indians took on the New York Giants today with one utility infielder—Russ Peters, who has a broken nose. Oscar Grimes, veteran utility man who plays all infield posts, went home to Cleveland last night with a cold and 102-degree temperature. Peters was injured several weeks ago by a thrown ball.

This Is Last Straw—Gal Picks Pennant Winners

By JEANE HOFMANN
Wide World Writer

PHILADELPHIA—The romper-clad heroes of the national pastime have returned from the land of oleanders, oranges and athletes. The spring-and-daisies class has been excused. The sunburn society has trekked back to civilization.

And once again, the question on America's lips will be: "Who's going to win the pennant?"

Or, form B: "Who's going to beat the Yankees?"

The Yankees have been winners for so many years now, the suspicion has grown that pennants are being manufactured in the shape of Yank uniforms, with shirt tails for ballast. Rival ball clubs are understood to be landscaping parks after the ninth hole at Pine Valley; hidden sand traps around the plate and water hazards between bases. Magnates have even considered drafting a resolution whereby opposing batters will be allowed preliminary warm-up strikes, a la relief pitchers, with Yanks limited to one (1) strike and ping pong racquets.

All this has been to no avail. American league clubs have been able to do nothing. But down in the wilds of Florida, a new National league hope has risen. "Hope," with a middle west twang and a St. Louis Cardinal stance. Hope that has come out of the despair which buried the Dodgers and N. L. fans at the end of the '41 October Olympics.

Pick Cards In National

Manager Billy Southworth, quote, is saying nothing, unquote, but the fact remains that this should be the best Cardinal team since Dizzy Dean's fast ball was doing a jig and curtsey in front of the plate. Under the warm St. Petersburg sun, the boys have baked out the injury jinx which plagued them last year. Morton Cooper, Ernie White, Harry Gumbert, the Howards, Krist and Pollet form the backbone of one of the best pitching staffs in the majors. Even old Lon Warneke has been fanning players and palm leafs. If Terry Moore, Estel Crabtree, John Hopp, Jim Brown, Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter, et al, can stay on the straight and narrow path to first without breaking their necks enroute the sun should still be shining by fall.

Answers Needed

Of course, there are other questions of national importance which rise to mind when baseball is mentioned. Will Ted (.406) Williams continue wearing his pants at low tide? Can fans expect solos from the Yanks new singing first sacker, Buddy Hassett? Will transcriptions be made of the pitcher-catcher huddles this year???

Having spent several weeks down in baseball's never-never land, this reporter can affirm the foregoing, and forecast that Cleveland will behave this year without Manager Lou Boudreau having to outfit the gang in catcher's muzzles. That Bill Lee will remain the undisputed handsomest man in baseball. (Unless you count the left-stand view of Arky Vaughn's profile). That Hans Lobert will get the Phils out of last place if he has to dredge. That the Cincy Reds and Boston Red Sox should not be overlooked. That....

That if this story runs in Brooklyn, stick barb wire around it please, and tell 'em we were only kidding, fellow. We were only kidding....

CARDINALS PICKED TO BEAT DODGERS AND TAKE PENNANT

Experts Forecast Outcome in National League in One-Sided Pennant Poll.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 9—By a 2 to 1 margin, the experts today picked the St. Louis Cardinals to overthrow Brooklyn's Dodgers and win the 1942 National league pennant.

In a surprisingly one-sided vote, 46 of the 74 baseball writers balloting in the annual Associated Press pennant poll tabbed the Cards to finish on top. One other writer, Jim Gould of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, couldn't make up his mind between the Cards and Cincinnati Reds, and split his ballot.

Only 23 picked the Dodgers to repeat their 1941 triumph in the senior circuit. Four forecast a return of the Reds to the top spot they held in 1939 and '40. No one could see the Cards worse than third, while four writers picked Brooklyn as low as fourth.

Those were the only three clubs drawing ballots for first place and the voting wound up in that order, with St. Louis piling up 563½ points on a basis of 8 for a first-place vote, 7 for a second, 6 for a third, etc. Brooklyn had 515 and Cincinnati 434½.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who brought up the rear of the first division in last year's pennant parade, were tabbed to do that again this time. Frank Frisch's boys were selected on three second-place ballots, 21 third and 32 fourth and compiled 375 points.

The second division voting wound up with New York, Chicago, Boston and (you guessed it) Philadelphia's Phillies in that order. There was quite a scramble for fifth place, with the Giants, under Mel Ott's brand new management, winning out, 200 to 244.

Naturally, there was no argument for the cellar. In fact, only four of the 74 writers had the Phils in seventh place. One hardy citizen, however, saw them as high as fifth in his crystal ball.

Jockey Longden to Ride With Regards in Quest of Derby Title on May 2

Win Would Cost Owner T. D. Grimes $1,000 Already Has Won Arkansas Derby.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Little Johnny Longden's be at all sure-thing understatement of the year turns out to be the name Grimes' Kentucky Derby hope, With Regards.

"The Englishman means he'll be here May 2 down there at Churchill Downs a lot of people are going to be convinced the horse should at least have run in his best regards."

That is because the whiz from Alberta feels that the high-class son of Jack High, who already has the Arkansas Derby to his credit this year in the bag by six straight successes he rolled up July, has a somewhat more than bad chance of ringing the bell to register on that $60,000 affair.

Johnny should know. He rode the rapid-winning bargain which Grimes picked up With Regards for less than $1,000—in fact for his nine trips to the post. Johnny is such a tiny guy that he can tuck his head he's practically invisible. He came to New York from the Oaklawn track to take in the racing which starts Thursday. With Regards, meanwhile, is at Louisville for a preliminary education. While he's here Johnny will be thinking of the blue grass a lot because he thinks With Regards is the best chance he's ever had to win the Derby.

"I could be might, too," Johnny added. "He's a tall fellow, and when you're on him, you hardly know he's running. He's that smooth. But he can go real nice."

That is hardly telling the whole story for With Regards smashed the Oaklawn track record to bits when he won the Derby in 1:50 flat for a mile an an eighth. Of this, Trainer-Owner Grimes says — "He's really traveling in any kind of dirt."

The colt reminds Johnny a lot of Snark, a picture galloper who campaigned around here about a half dozen years ago. Snark was one of the fastest things seen in these parts in years.

With Regards showed no signs of limping for gas in the Oaklawn Derby's mile and an eighth, and Grimes doesn't see why the extra length of the Kentucky Derby should change things.

If he can do it down at the Downs when the blue chips are up, it will be a real nice thing for little Johnny, Longden's been riding for some time now. In 1938, he was the top jockey in the business. But the best he's ever done in the Derby was when Meledist tired and finished fourth in '37. At 32, Johnny can't have many more derbies left to ride, so if he can do it this time—why one and all should be glad to say, with best regards.

Snatches of Sports

NEW YORK, April 9—The horses start running today at Jamaica and Keeneland; New England opens its season Saturday, the day after Florida closes. Wonder when the fans are supposed to find time to refill their pocketbooks?...It's our idea that all sports seasons run too long. There would be more fun and just as many customers if they'd start later and end earlier so the fans could get a breathing spell and get steamed up about each new sport as its season came along...Another suggestion: If Leon Rains' peace conference between the Army and the A.A.U. doesn't smooth things out today, why not have an arrangements whereby the armed forces could "certify" athletes as being okay the way colleges do?

Sportpourri—After the Augusta Masters' golf tourney, Craig Wood, the national open champion, and Ben Hogan, the top money winner, will play a series of matches for the "unofficial world championship" and a wad of cash for war relief...Looks as if Hogan had better win the Masters...Alsab may race in Toronto during the Woodbine park meeting in May if a date can be arranged that won't conflict with any of his stakes engagements...Whitey Fuller, Dartmouth drum beater now pounding the tom toms for the navy air corps, will be dined tonight by the Indian coaches he has been praising all these years...Headline in N. of some of the more ardent team owners. Charles Lecrone, prominent baseball fan and owner of the Tiffin franchise, has come up with the suggestion that a semi-pro league be organized in a compact northern Ohio sector to replace the professional league.

It is Lecrone's idea to form a league with teams from within a 50-mile radius of Tiffin. Games would be played on Sundays and holidays and a nominal gate fee would be charged with players sharing in proceeds after actual operating expenses have been met. Teams would be built around home town talent only. Lecrone would require teams to post an entrance fee. This would assure appearance of teams for all games and would do away with forfeits.

Of course, your first question will be: "Will Marion back a team? Yes. This is war-time and Marion is engaged in producing machines of war. People working long shifts in defense plants naturally seek recreation, entertainment, and enjoyment at every opportunity. And a baseball game, even on the hottest of days, is a lot better than loafing.

Time Table Troubles—If you plan to attend any of the Cleveland Indian baseball games this summer it might be a good idea to make a double-check on the game times before leaving here because there will be five different starting times.

The different starting times are necessary, General Manager Roger Peckinpaugh said, to make it possible for defense plant workers to attend games. Editor's note: Aren't all Cleveland plants on the same schedule as the Jack and Heintz Co.?

Here is the schedule of starting times:

Week-days —4 p. m.
Saturdays—2 p. m.
Sundays—3 p. m.
Double-headers—1:30 p. m.
Night games—9:15 p. m.

From Spotlight to Footlight—Charlie Roberts, Harding basketball and football star, has been cast in the role of a major in the Harding senior class play to be given next month at the Palace theater.

Local Paddle Wielders Lose—The Galion Table Tennis club defeated a Marion team 6-4 at the Y. M. C. A. recently. In the singles division Ralph Steward, Lee Prettyman and Charles Turner won matches, while Gene Roberts and Prettyman teamed to win a doubles match. A return match will be played with Galion soon.

BURGETT NAMED GRID COACH AT DELAWARE

Ex-Buckeye Star Succeeds Tom Denny.

DELAWARE, April 9 — Robert Burgett, now assistant football coach at Willis High school, was named head coach at Delaware High school Tuesday night by the board of education after the resignation of Head Coach Tom Denny was submitted and accepted.

Burgett, a graduate of Columbus North and Ohio State university, is to assume his new duties immediately. He has been a member of the Willis High school coaching staff for two years and was in charge of the reserve team last season. He played college football under Francis Schmidt at Ohio State.

Denny announced his resignation in a letter to the board, stating it would be in fairness to school officials and members of the football squad because of the uncertainty regarding his draft status.

He will stay at Delaware as a classroom teacher during the rest of the term and told the board he would accept the position of director of adult education next term if not called for service this summer.

STOCK PRICES DRIFT LOWER

War News Has Retarding Ef- fect on Wall Street Trad- ing Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 9 — The news was a bit too cloudy for stock market bulls today and prices generally continued the lower drift.

Principal buying handicaps were seen in the virtual fall of Bataan, the sinking of two Brit- ish cruisers in the Indian Ocean and fears the Nazis might soon start a surprise spring offen- sive. Tax doubts, spreading fed- eral controls and threats to cor- porate dividends also remained as brakes on sentiment.

Prominent share lowers included Westinghouse which, among oth- ers, touched a new 4-year bottom; Du Pont, General Foods, Zenith Radio, American Telephone, Beth- lehem, General Motors, Santa Fe, Sears Roebuck, Johns-Man- ville and U. S. Rubber.

Those who have been talking about markets being oversold and discounting to a considerable ex- tent dire international and do- mestic developments found feeble confirmation in the transfer of a stock exchange seat for $18,000, up $18,000 from a previous trans- action which recorded the lowest membership price since 1897.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D

Pains in Abdomen

The acute abdomen is a term employed by surgeons and means any sudden catastrophe which produces severe abdominal symptoms.

The acute abdomen, in terms of symptoms, means pain, discomfort, fever, prostration, shock and vomiting. They may not all be present, but usually a combination of three or four of these will be present. It is highly important for the surgeon to make a diagnosis before shock and prostration interfere with treatment and that is why the condition should be known to the layman in every household.

The causes of acute abdomen are many. Probably the commonest is acute appendicitis. This may start out quite insidiously, but within 24 or 48 hours change from a mild pain in the abdomen to a severe condition of distention, vomiting and shock.

A second cause of the acute abdomen is intestinal obstruction. The commonest form of this is a strangulated hernia. It is astonishing how many people do not know that they have a hernia which may be dangerous. Of a series of patients who entered a hospital with a strangulated femoral hernia, 43 per cent, and their doctors, did not know that a hernia existed, and had no idea of the cause of the symptoms.

A third form of intestinal obstruction occurs around adhesions. In any patient who has had an abdominal operation and who suddenly has the symptoms of acute abdomen, this complication should be suspected.

Another which occurs in children is known as intussusception. This is a telescoping of the small bowel into the large bowel. A form of intestinal obstruction that occurs in old people is known as volvulus and is due to a twisting of the bowel on itself.

Acute abdomen may be caused by perforation of a part of the stomach or bowel in which an ulcer has eaten through. This occurs in ulcer of the stomach, typhoid ulcer, ulcerative colitis and other conditions.

The most important thing that the layman should know about acute abdomen is not to try to treat it at home; especially not to try to treat it with cathartics. Somebody who has "a little bellyache" almost invariably thinks it will get better if he takes a cathartic. In every known condition which causes an acute abdomen, this simply tends to throw the patient into a dangerous shock.

The best thing to do is to apply heat until the doctor gets there. By all odds, if there is any possibility of getting a doctor, do so. A great many cases get well by themselves if they are not stirred up by a cathartics, so even if you can't get a doctor, don't get hysterical and don't give a cathartic. Put the patient to bed with heat on the abdomen in the form of a hot pack or a hot towel and remember that there is such a thing as the acute abdomen which begins with little symptoms such as a little pain and discomfort, but which can quickly grow into big ones.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Her Men Set Diswell and His Man Free, Hastening To Get Away Before Gangsters Come.

IT was the voice of Gus, my father's trusted guardian at the hideaway, now calling at the door, and I gave a cry of relief which was almost a sob. It was not only relief from the fear I had experienced at the tardiness of the men in getting to the house, but also thankfulness that I did not have to go on with the precarious task of standing over the impersonator of Professor Diswell with my small silencer pistol.

"All right, Gus!" I called shrilly. "I'll unlock the door in a second."

Then I spoke again to the man against the wall.

"I'm backing to the door," I told him, "with my pistol trained on you. It would be useless for you to make any move to escape, as well as extremely unwise, unless you wish to risk another bullet wound."

Reason for Haste

"I can wait," he said sullenly, "until my own men get here."

The words were like a dash of cold water on my face, for I knew that we would face a desperate battle if the gangsters coming in the other armored car should arrive before we were able to get away. But, as cold water often does, this stimulated me to faster action. I backed rapidly to the door, turned the key and threw it open to admit Gus, Bill and Joe, of my father's men, and the volunteer Jim Watson, from Warren, who had told us of encountering men in an armored car, whose inquiry about the road to Professor Diswell's had aroused his suspicion so much that he had planned a rescue party on his own account.

"Are you all right, Missis Graham?" Gus asked anxiously.

"Yes, yes, Gus, perfectly all right," I answered. "But we must work fast now. I haven't time to explain much. Two of you tie that man up—the one who's standing by the wall. I had to shoot him in the wrist. When we get out of here I'll attend to that, but we haven't time now. You other two, come in the next room with me."

I was deliberately throwing a sop to Gus. I knew how he loved to be the general on the job, so I was leaving the disposition of the men to him, and he fairly leaped at the bait.

"Bill and Joe, you tie that fellow up," he said, "and me and Jim Watson will go with Missis Graham."

"What will we use for ropes?" Joe demanded.

"We'll send you out plenty in another two minutes," I told him. "On second thought, one of you will be enough to guard him with a revolver until time to tie him up. The other one come with us."

"Stay with him, Bill!" Gus commanded. "Come along, Joe!"

Bill took up his position behind the man against the wall, and the others followed me into the next room.

"Good God, Professor Diswell!" Jim Watson ejaculated, as he rushed up to the old man and began to work with expert fingers at the cloth twisted and tied behind his head. "What have they done to you?"

Gus had gone to work upon the gag in the other man's mouth, while Bill dropped on his knees in front of the younger man and began to untie the ropes tying his feet together.

I was on my own knees, working at the ropes binding the ankles of the old professor, and it was a matter of only a minute before we were able to turn them around and undo the ropes that tied their arms behind their backs.

The old professor slumped to the ground from sheer weakness as soon as his bonds were loosened, but the younger man clutched at Gus and raised himself to his feet, swaying a little but evidently possessing plenty of reserve strength.

"Thank you," he croaked through stiff lips bruised and caked with blood. "You—came just in time."

"Don't talk," I said, "unless you have to. Just put your mind to work on what you wish to take with you. An armored car with several gangsters in it is on its way here to help the imposter in the other room. We must get you two out of here and to safety as soon as possible."

The Stars Say—

For Friday, April 10

PROGRESS, prosperity, promotion and preferment are among the fortuitous conditions found in this day's horoscope. There is every possibility of accomplishment of high goals and ambitions and of many cherished plans in the realm of heart's desire, albeit a trivial emotional disturbance is noted. It should be a time to push for favors and the approbation of those in high places.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year in which luck as well as pluck are to win their fair share of good fortune, high achievement, with rewards for enterprise, splendid talents and efficiency, perhaps a promotion or preferent from those in power.

A child born on this day should be exceptionally talented, with much energy and enterprise for attaining high place.
